RUSSIA POWERS ON

The moment of truth

Russia are going to take some shifting from the top of the Open Series table as they now lead the two teams tied for second, Poland and Greece, by a significant margin. There is then an even bigger gap to Norway, who lead the chasing pack that contains Bulgaria, Italy, Israel, Austria, Belgium and France. Any team that hopes to join the race will have to play very well from here.

In the Ladies Series, England still leads from Austria, Spain and France. Then come Israel, Czech Republic, Netherlands and the pre-tournament favourites, Germany, who at last showed a glimpse of their true form when they drew with Austria and defeated England.

In the Seniors, the holders France 2 are on course to retain their title, as they hold a twenty point lead over Italy I.

Nothing To Be Proud Of!

n the seventh round of the Seniors event, one player was very proud of his play on the frequently fateful Board 13.

l♦ Dble INT

All Pass

West led a club and East took the king and switched to a low spade. The declarer, European Senior Pairs Champion Göran Mattsson, gave the matter some thought and eventually arrived at the winning decision, putting up the queen. Now he could play on diamonds and emerge with seven tricks; +90.

When the time came to compare scores he was looking forward to describing the play when his teammates announced their result on the deal: +1520!

They had played in One Spade redoubled, making with two overtricks.

Overheard in the Senior Teams

Bridge is a great comfort in your old age.

It also helps you get there faster.

Crocodile Dundee on Play

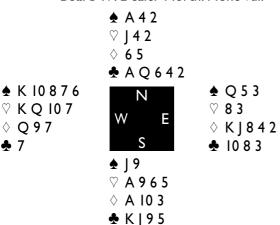

by Ib Lundby

If you love bridge like I do, but realise that your skills at the table are gone with the wind, you have to find another way of enjoying your favourite sport. I have chosen to work as a bridge journalist and I can assure you that it is worth all the money (though the job is not very well paid).

Because of the lack of skills you have very often to rely on getting good hands from the top players. In this area I have experienced that top players can be divided in two typical groups, lucky and unlucky experts. When you ask a lucky expert for a good hand he or she will present you with something like a double entry shifting squeeze or whatever - a brilliancy of some kind. However, the so called unlucky experts always support you with hands where they failed, trying to do something clever.

Sabine Auken is a good example of a player from the second group. She gave me this hand from Germany's match versus Spain in Round 9 where she tried to make a brilliancy herself but ended up as the victim of a brilliancy made by Spains Matut.

Quiz

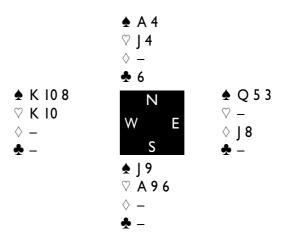

The quiz question about the number of boards duplicated brought in the largest response so far. The answer, as provided by Ton Kooijman, is 46,372. The winner was the Tournament Director Rui Marques whose answer was less than 5% away from the target. Today's quiz is a picture and the question is: what is it and where is it? Answers to the Bulletin Room and as usual a book prize will be awarded to the winner.

You and I can count eight tricks - Sabine counted nine but got only seven.

East led a diamond to $\lozenge 9$, $\lozenge Q$ was covered with $\lozenge K$ and ducked, and $\lozenge A$ won the third round of the suit - North discarding a spade. Because of West's double and East's diamond holding Sabine was sure that West had the royal families in both majors, and as such she had a nice plan ensuring the contract. She cashed four club tricks and noticed that West discarded two spades and a heart while East discarded a heart. Now, a low heart from dummy was won by West with the $\heartsuit Q$, and this was the picture:

West escaped with the ♠8 won with the ace, and on the last club East discarded a diamond, the ♠J disappeared from dummy and West unblocked the ♠K. Sabine got off with a low spade to fulfil her brilliancy as she "knew" that West would have to surrender. In practise she was in fact very close to the target in spite of the holding, but as you may have guessed: Mrs Matut was a fan of Mr Crocodile Dundee and very elegant she opened the crocodile's mouth and swallowed West's ♠10 with the ♠Q. Two off.

Very nice play ladies!

Hand of the Day

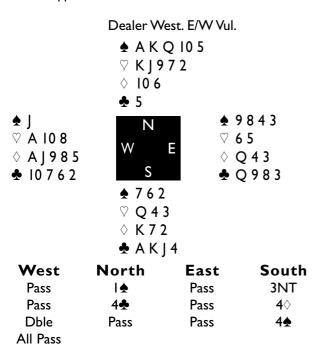

By Svend Novrup, e-bridge correspondent

When the results of board 16 in round 17 of the Open Series and Round 8 of the Ladies Series were displayed in the VuGraph there was an almost infinite row of 620's and 650's for N-S, depending on the lead. When East led a low diamond North had 10 tricks. If East led something else North got 11 tricks.

Santos and Matut - Brilliant defenders

There were very few exceptions. In one match North fell from grace when she put up $\Diamond K$ allowing herself to be forced out of trump control. But there was also a table from the ladies' match between Spain and Italy where East had led $\Diamond Q$ offering declarer no chance at all to make her contract. Let's have a look at what happened in that room.

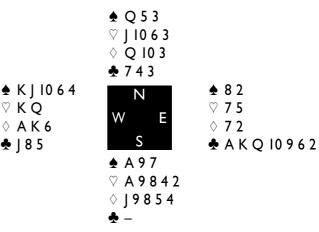

4♣ and 4♦ are cue-bids, agreeing spades as trumps, and West, Mari Carmen Santos, gratefully seized the opportunity to ask for a diamond lead. With no entry Maria Luisa Matut in the East chair decided to lead her ♦Q and bingo! The contract could no longer be made, producing an 11 IMP swing for Spain as North at the other table made 11 tricks. The board contributed to the Spanish jump to 3rd on Saturday after wins of 21-9 against Italy and 19-11 against Germany.

Well done, and let us add a board featuring a really brave girl. They say that play is more aggressive in the Open Series but even there no player dared what Jessica Larsson of Sweden did, sitting South on board 13 of the same round:

Jessica Larsson - a bold bid!

Dealer North. All Vul.

4 shows a two-suiter, usually the majors(!), but luckily North, Pia Andersson, had a natural heart preference. East led a top club ruffed, and North played ace and another heart. A spade switch at this point is necessary but very difficult, and when it did not materialise North made her doubled contract for +790. Not only that. At the other table the Swedish pair had the standard result of 3NT with 10 tricks for another 630. 17 IMPs to Sweden. Caused by a brave (when it succeeds it is not foolhardy!) bid!

SESSION 17 OPEN TEAMS

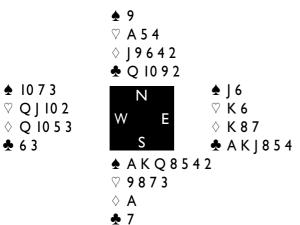

Russia v Austria

At a certain moment on Friday afternoon, Austria all of a sudden were enjoying 3rd place in the standings. In the last match of the day, they suffered a temporary setback, losing to Lebanon 24-6. Was that some sort of omen for them with regard to their two matches on Saturday? And look at their task: playing Russia and Italy in successive matches, the latter match being displayed live on Rama as well. Thus, it was only proper they should start the Saturday with a bye.

They would not be left in peace for a single moment, however, in their first match. The action started right on the very first board.

The off-shape notrump opening did not work out very well. Petrunin could double for penalties and show a very good spade suit when 2♣, which promised nothing but only denied any willingness to play INT, ran round to him. Gromov's values were more than enough to make 3NT a fair bet, and so it proved. Two aces and seven spades were all that was needed. When the defenders played for the only possibility to set the contract, throwing their hearts, two overtricks were made. Russia +460.

After the natural, Precision style 24-opening from Zlotov, Schifko simply did not have enough room to find out what might be the best contract, so he settled for 4♠ immediately. This proved the wrong option, but the defence had to be careful. Kholomeev led the $\heartsuit Q$, won in dummy with the ace, declarer playing the seven when the six appeared from East. Then came a string of trumps before finally reverting to another heart, the nine this time, from his hand. When Kholomeev played low from

When North managed to conjure up an opening bid on this collection, the pattern changed completely. In fact, add the \heartsuit J to the North hand and the slam is pretty good. On a heart lead, the suit might have been distributed favourably as we pointed out just now, but East led the ♣Q ending declarer's aspirations. On board 11 the Russians in the Open Room overbid to a slam on a reasonable trump break, a good guess and a finesse. Justice was done when this was asking just too much...Austria +50 to add to +420 from the other table. The Russian lead had shrunk to the odd imp now.

The next board was another slam, this time an easy 6. or 6NT bid at both tables, and then came:

Much more action in the Closed Room, where 3NT was not available to start proceedings. After $3\clubsuit$, Schifko found a double and Kholomeev had an easy redouble. Schifko then ran to $3\diamondsuit$ and Gloyer introduced his hearts. Zlotov's 3NT now very much suggested a solid suit after all, so why should Kholomeev double $4\heartsuit$? Opposite a solid suit there are 10 easy tricks. As it happened, $4\heartsuit$ was just one off, so the Austrians had picked up another 10 IMPs and thus took the lead for the first and only time in the match.

A few boards later, both teams reached the proper contract, but the play made the difference when Gromov took a precaution missed at the other table:

Guided by partner's double, Lindermann made the good lead of the $\Diamond Q$, covered by king and ace. The $\Diamond J$ followed and a third diamond was ruffed by declarer with the seven after a long huddle. Of course, Gromov could by no means be sure that East would follow suit a third time. His next move was to draw trumps in such a way that the risk of a lethal uppercut would be minimised. His solution was as simple as it was effective: he crossed to dummy's $\clubsuit A$ and led a low trump from the board. As it was East who held the $\heartsuit A$ as well as the third trump, Gromov's problems were soon over when the $\heartsuit A$ won the second round of the trump suit and the $\clubsuit J$ was continued. Well played for a well-deserved +420 to Russia.

Please note that $4 \oint$ will go down on the same lead of the $\Diamond Q$ as declarer will be fatally shortened immediately. Interesting to see that once again it was all about choosing the correct major suit in which to bid game.

Proper contract at the other table as well, and an even better lead by Zlotov who found the same $\Diamond Q$ lead without a double to help him. Same play, but declarer ruffed the third round of diamonds with the nine. This would not have caused him a problem, but when his next move was to play the \heartsuit J from hand he found himself in trouble when West won the ace and led another diamond. Ruffing with the seven now would have seen the contract home after all, but when declarer discarded a spade, East could insert the \heartsuit 6 to force dummy's queen and to promote West's \heartsuit 108 to a second trump trick and thus defeat the contract. Russia +50 and 10 IMPs back to take the lead yet again.

Norway v Belgium

At about the halfway stage of the Open event, Norway were among the leading five, whereas Belgium were lying 10th, already 20 V.P. behind 5th placed Italy. So the Belgians had to do well if they were to continue their chances of earning a trip to Bali later this year, whereas for Norway, consolidating their position would be all that was required. Belgium, a team that proved to be one of the revelations in Maastricht at the recent Olympiad, had lost some of its momentum during the past days, but so had Norway. Still, an interesting match could be expected, and so it turned out.

On board I, a well-timed lead-directing double steered Norway away from a slam they were well on their way to:

In the Belgian auction, South started a cuebid sequence instead of asking for aces. This worked out well when East could double the only possible cuebid North could make. Upon hearing the invitational $2\heartsuit$, Helness made one more positive more where his Belgian counterpart at the other table passed. The play hinged upon a good guess in hearts. The \clubsuit J was led by Guy Van Middelem, Zvi Engel winning the king and returning the suit to dummy's ace. The \clubsuit 8 from dummy then went to East's queen, and a low diamond came back to the jack and king.

Helness then led the AK from hand, which Engel took with the ace to return another club on which East shed a low heart., declarer's A10 winning. A heart then went to the king and ace, and a spade came back. All declarer had to do now was to cross to the Q, cash the last club and play a heart to the nine. At the other table, Sælensminde found an opening bid where Van Middelem had passed, so the momentum of the auction turned from N/S to E/W. Brogeland, thinking the hand belonged to E/W, quite rightly doubled 3NT, but much depended on the lead and subsequent defence now. A spade lead by East works, the lead of the $\Diamond K$ stands out, but who can find that? On a club lead, Carcassonne won her queen and led a heart to the ten in dummy. When this held, she had five hearts, two clubs and two aces for another +750 to Belgium or 14 IMPs.

2NT showed heart support and the contract was very, very straightforward. With only a club, a spade and a diamond to lose as the cards lay, the outcome of it all was very, very satisfactory. In fact, an overtrick was made when the defence did not cash their established club trick first, but instead underled the \triangle A hoping to give declarer a nasty guess. Belgium another +450 and 11 IMPs.

The final score was 57-16 or 23-7 VPs to Belgium. They had managed to stay on course.

nine for the jack and queen. Nehmert led a third round to Maria Erhart's king. Erhart played a club and Nehmert went in with the ace to cash her heart, on which dummy and Rauscheid threw diamonds and declarer a spade. Nehmert exited passively with a club to dummy's king. Erhart played a spade to her king and cashed the queen of clubs, throwing a spade from dummy. When the clubs did not divide evenly, Erhart played ace then jack of diamonds, running it when Nehmert played low. A spade to the ace allowed her to cash the diamonds for +400.

Doris Fischer chose to lead a spade. Sabine Auken ducked when Terry Weigkricht's queen appeared. The spade continuation was won in hand and Auken cashed the $\Diamond A$ then ran the jack. When that held she led a club, but here Fischer ducked and Auken put in the ten. When that lost to the jack, Weigkricht cleared the spades. Auken cashed the diamonds then played a heart to the jack. When that lost to the queen she was two down for -100 and 11 IMPs to Austria.

Rauscheid led the nine of spades against INT, treating her holding as a sort of interior sequence. That worked beautifully as it made it easy for Nehmert to preserve her honours, playing an encouraging two. Smederevac won and played a diamond to dummy then a club to the king and ace. Rauscheid continued with a low spade and again Nehmert could duck. Smederevac just cashed out now before playing a club towards the jack so the defence had the rest; +90.

The Germans reached the thin game contract but here Weigkricht led her smallest spade and Fischer put in the ten. Von Arnim crossed to a diamond to play a club up and Weigkricht won and played a second low spade. When Fischer put up the jack, the suit was blocked. Von Arnim cashed the diamonds then played a club up with no great enthusiasm and suddenly found that she had made her contract; +400 and 7 IMPs to Germany.

Erhart's 2♠ opening showed 5-5 in spades and a minor. Smederevac's competitive 3♠ bid was a bit pushy on a doubleton spade, and whether Erhart was supposed to go on to game I cannot say - Maria is a law unto herself anyway, whatever the system says. Rauscheid could see that 4♠ was going to be hard work with a bad trump split and her almost certain club stopper. She doubled and there the matter rested. Nehmert led the queen of diamonds to dummy's ace. Erhart led the eight of clubs to the nine and ace then a spade to the jack and ace. That jack looked ominous. Erhart gave up a club and back came a diamond, which she ruffed. She cleared the clubs and Rauscheid, who was out of diamonds, switched to a low heart for the king and ace. Nehmert forced declarer once again with a diamond and Erhart could make only her trumps and the two aces already in the bag; three down for -500.

The Austrians had the opportunity to defend against only 3 - 4 + 4 = 100 at the other table. Fischer preferred to compete to 4 - 4 = 100 which it looks as though she might have made, but the actual result was down one for -50 and 11 IMPs to Germany.

The final result of the match was 47-46 to Germany, a $15-15\,\text{VP}$ draw.

Contract:

Five Clubs, played by East.

Lead:

Three of Hearts.

Result:

11 tricks, N/S -600.

The Facts:

The Director was called to the table before the opening lead. South drew attention to the 'long' delay in returning the tray after the 4NT bid. West disputed this. South also complained that he had failed to obtain a clear explanation of the 5 Clubs bid, West had taken time to make this bid and stated that he was unsure what was the agreed trump suit. After the play was completed the Director was recalled and North/South protested the failure to show the King of Clubs, the 4NT being RKCB, or to bid 6 Clubs.

The Director:

Could not establish how long had been the delay in returning the tray after the 4NT bid, and made a Law 85B ruling, advising the N/S players of their right to appeal.

Ruling:

Result Stands.

Relevant Laws:

Law 16. Law 85B.

North/South appealed.

Present:

All players, both Captains, and the Austrian scorer.

The Players:

North/South wished to stress that they suggested no ethical fault on the part of their opponents but they felt that the failure to admit possession of the King of Clubs could have been influenced by the long delay in passing the tray and should be considered a use of unauthorized information. There was in their opinion illicit information and their opponents had gained from it.

East/West confirmed to the Committee that 4♠ was bid to suggest a possible contract and denied a Heart control, West being limited to a doubleton in Spades at this stage. East confirmed that the 3♣ bid would normally show at least four cards in the suit. Whilst East had deemed Clubs to be the trump suit when he had bid 4NT, if partner had responded 5♦ he could sign off in 5 Spades. West said he had chosen not to show the key card because he thought he had a bad hand. Both sides expressed opinions as to whether 5♠/5♣ should be made. South said the delay had been at least one-and-a-half minutes before the tray came back with the 4NT bid, but East said that the tempo was normal - about 15 seconds.

The Committee:

The Committee held that the circumstance in which 4NT was bid following a long and complicated auction was one where East had some entitlement to consider his bid whatever the nature of his problems. It is not the case that West can tell from a delayed return of the tray in such a position what East has needed to think about. The Code of Practice states: "Attention is drawn to the distinction to be made in the tempo expected when players encounter highly unusual situations. Directors and Appeals Committees should be sympathetic." Furthermore the Committee was of a mind that the delay was not anywhere near one-and-a-half minutes.

The Committee's decision:

There was no unauthorized information. Director's ruling upheld.

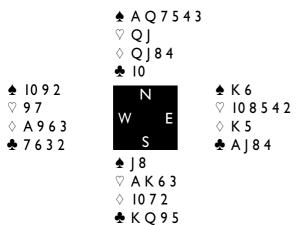

Deposit:

Returned.

Greek Gift

When two of Europe's top lady players met in the Round 7 match between Germany and Israel, one accepted a gift from the other and was left with egg on her face. It was only for a second undertrick, but no less satisfying for the winner of this little duel.

Board 16. Dealer West. E/W Vul.

Sabine Auken was declarer in 4♠ from the North seat and Migri Zur-Campanila led a heart, won by the queen. Auken continued with two more rounds of hearts, throwing her club loser. Ruth Levit-Porat ruffed the third heart and switched to a low diamond to her partner's king. Back cama a diamond to the ace and a third diamond gave Zur-Campanila a ruff. With no entry to dummy, declarer was destined to drop the now bare king of spades and escape for one down. Zur-Campanila had other ideas, however, and switched to a low club, dummy's king winning. Declarer fell from grace and took the opportunity to take the trump finesse; two down for -100.

Quote of the Night

by Sam Leckie, Scotland

I have a theory that if a team of six share rooms it is better that partnerships do not so as to avoid further discussion about the day's play.

When I saw the Scottish Ladies dining together in an open-air restaurant I joined them and to try to establish if my theory had anything to do with their poor start innocently asked them, 'Would you girls mind telling me what your sleeping arrangements are here in Tenerife?'

For a moment there was stunned silence. Then the table erupted with laughter.

Perhaps I could have put it better.

SPECIAL OFFER TO IBPA WORKING JOURNALISTS

Perhaps, by now, most of you have had the opportunity to explore the website of e-bridge (www.e-bridge-master.com). If you have not, there is a seven-day free trial available for everyone. The e-bridge News Pages are always free and can be found at:

www.e-bridgemaster.com/news/news_hub.asp, a URL you will be pleased to bookmark.

In order to create and maintain a site as comprehensive as e-bridge's, a significant capital investment was required, and since February, e-bridge has, inevitably, become a subscription site, albeit it at a bargain basement price.

From the outset, e-bridge has sought to develop and maintain a mutually beneficial relationship with IBPA and its worldwide membership. The company has sponsored and continues to sponsor major world and zonal championships and a variety of contests for journalists, including "Best" deals and Clippings, but long-term plans include a more "intimate" relationship with IBPA "working" journalists, i.e. those who enjoy a print or flesh-and-blood medium for their creative efforts (columns, magazine features, newsletters, teaching seminars, etc).

e-bridge is at this time pleased to offer these IBPA members a complimentary three-month subscription to its website and all its features, with the subscription renewable in three-month increments to demonstrably active users. Those of you who write daily or weekly features will appreciate how convenient it can be to have access to a vast supply of suitable material to draw on for inspiration and, with minor modification, to suit individual needs. On the e-bridge site you will find VuGraph (most often including analysis by expert commentators), coverage of all major events and a wealth of articles and features. You will find new material each week, rivaling the scope and quality of the best monthly magazines, so interested journalists should have everything they need to make their working lives easier.

In return, e-bridge asks only that you include the e-bridge website address and any other topical information not inconsistent with the articles you "create" from the e-bridge content, that you provide e-bridge with an electronic version of those articles, and that (where permissible) you grant e-bridge the right to reprint your articles, with full accreditation to the author and original "print" source.

e-bridge would be pleased to have qualifying journalists play at least some of their online bridge in the Social and/or Tournament Rooms and in our special events, such as the Internet Open Pairs World Championship, free to all our members. If our site is to flourish, we will need to increase our membership, and we hope that our friends in IBPA will find enough that they like to help us spread the word to friends and readers alike.

If you believe you qualify as a working journalist please provide supporting information (names and details of print outlets for your work) to Richard Laufer: richard@e-bridgemaster.com or David Libchaber: davidl@e-bridgemaster.com, or call our New York office at +212-483-1055. These gentlemen will set up your accounts for you and answer any questions you might have.

Italian Team Profiles

Noberto Bocchi

Norberto Bocchi

This 39-year- old from Parma is a World Master and European Grand Master and has been playing bridge since he was 17. He is now a professional bridge-player. Norberto has won the Italian Team Championships six times and for a record nine years has been first in the Italian ranking. With his partner, Giorgio Duboin, in addition to many other competitions, he has won two European Team Championships, in 1997 and 1999, silver medal in the European Pairs

Championships and gold at the Olympiad in Maastricht in 2000. Man: temperamental - sensitive - good-natured

Guido Ferraro

Guido Ferraro

This 41-year-old professional bridgeplayer from Turin currently plays with De Falco and during the '80s was one of the best European Juniors. The victory at the European Championships in Malta in 1999, playing with De Falco, was the first prestigious and important result in his career and this was then followed by gold medal at the Maastricht Olympiad. Playing for the Lavazza team Guido has won three Italian team titles.

Man: friendly - irritating - lazy

Lorenzo Lauria

Bridgeplayer: unreachable (interpret as you wish!) - inconstant - faulty as an old domestic appliance

Dano De Falco

Dano De Falco

A 57-year-old Milanese now living in Padova, Dano is a World Master and European Grand Master. He played with the legendary Blue Team with which he won one gold and two silver medals in World Championships and two silvers in the European Championships. He won his third European gold medal in 1999. In 1987, in Hammamet, he won the first World Transnational Teams Championship and gold medal in 2000 at the Olympiad in Maastricht.

Man: lazy - friendly - gentleman

Bridgeplayer: aggressive - pensive - solid

Lorenzo Lauria

This 54-year-old professional bridgeplayer from Rome is a World Life Master and European Grand Master. He is currently the Italian player with most titles. In 1979 he won gold medal in the European team Championship and silver in the Bermuda Bowl. For seven years he has played in a very successful partnership with Alfredo Versace. Together they have won two consecutive European Team Championships, in 1995 and 1997, the IOC Grand Prix in 1999, the Cavendish team event in 1996 and 1997, the World Team Championship in 1998, the Olympiad in 2000, as well as six Italian titles.

Man: non-conformist - humorous - courageous Bridgeplayer: aggressive - successful - patient

Giorgio Duboin

Giorgio Duboin

This 41-year-old professional bridgeplayer from Turin is a World Master and European Grand Master. Giorgio started playing bridge when he was 13 and soon became one of the world's best juniors. With Guido Ferraro he won the European Junior Pairs and two MEC Championships. Playing with Bocchi he has won two European titles, in 1997 and 1999, as well as gold medal at the Olympiad in Maastricht in 2000, and silver at the European Pairs Championship in 1999. Playing for the Lavazza team he has won seven Italian team titles.

Man: good-natured - nervy - modest Bridgeplayer: technical - solid - constant

Alfredo Versace

Alfredo Versace

This 31-year-old professional bridgeplayer from Turin is a World Life Master and European Grand Master. Alfredo started playing bridge at age 12 and soon became (together with Helgemo) the strongest junior in the world. In 1990 he won the European Junior Team title. Playing with Lauria he has won two consecutive European Team Championships, in 1995 and 1997, the IOC Grand Prix in 1999, the Cavendish team event in 1996 and 1997, the World Team Championship in 1998, the Olympiad in 2000, as well as six Italian titles.

Man: jokey - affectionate - calm

Bridgeplayer: relaxed - impatient with slow players - willing to play and adaptable with any partner.

Limericks

The response to the limerick competition has, so far, been underwhelming. It has been proposed that the cause of the dearth of entries is in part due to the poor scanning of the first line and also that its rhyming potential is not great, as epitomised by the following response from Grattan Endicott.

In limericks, to rhyme 'Tenerife' Is in brife a source of much grife, Solutions sublime, Need patience and time, Or such is my current belife.

Though to be fair we have had one excellent attempt by Florence Whittaker from Scotland

There was a young lady from Tenerife, Whose Grand was doubled by Omar Sharif, He laid down his ace, With a smile on his face, But she trumped, so his joy turned to grief.

After long and hard deliberations with the editor over several glasses of refreshing liquid we have decided to allow a second possible first line, viz.

'There was a young lady from Arona'

So please bring your entries to the Bulletin Room or send them via email to 'tenlim@hotmail.com'.

It has been further suggested by several members of the Bulletin staff that the criteria for future venues include the suitability of its name for the limerick competition.

Championship Diary

The Editor reports on the daily events at and around the Championship venue.

Sunday 24 June 2001

The players in the Ladies Transnational Team Cup were delighted to receive tickets to Saturday night's Flamenco show, compliments of the EBL.

Hackett's Horses for yesterday were Grand Slam in the 17.05 at Perth - possibly doubled with King of Trumps in the 14.25 at Lingfield. In view of the results this feature is withdrawn for the time being.

As we go into the second week some of the players are beginning to show signs of the inevitable strain imposed by having to concentrate so hard for so long and we received our first report of a player falling asleep at the table. So far the only players we have seen when we go for breakfast at 08.00 are those from Poland - and they look as if they could play for another month, let alone a week.

Yesterday's bulletin featured an excellent interview with Maria-Teresa Lavazza, but for the record Sandra Landy was Captain of the Great Britain team that won the Generali Open European Championship in Killarney in 1991.

Ron Tacchi celebrated his twenty-ninth wedding anniversary yesterday, and in accordance with local custom the tradition of taking one drink for each year of marital bliss was upheld, so don't expect too many photographs today!

Ron sent his wife, who is at home in France, flowers, forgetting she would be out when they arrived.
