RIGA

The capital of LATVIA

Riga is a historical Hanseatic city with a fascinating old town, narrow alleys and stone pavements. Germans, Swedes, Jews, Poles and Russians have all left their mark on Riga, and especially breathtaking is the plenty and beauty of Art Nouveau. It is recommended to walk with your head up for all the architectural wonders you are not likely to see anywhere else.

Riga has not only got a colourful history, the city is also very much alive here and now. It is full of small coffeehouses, restaurants, pubs and clubs. Riga can offer a variety of accommodation and dining, as well as an extremely lively cultural life. Perhaps the best evidence of Riga's cultural strength is old buildings being lovingly restored.

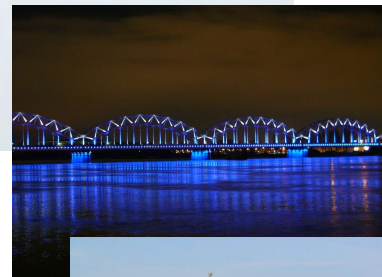

Even today Riga has managed to maintain its original old world atmosphere. It blossoms with 19th century parks and wide boulevards. Hardly any European city is as rich in parks and gardens.

Riga is often called a city of parks, a city of Art Deco, the city of inspiration – and rightly so. These labels are all valid, but to the list we could easily add another concept – Riga as a city of museums. There are more than 50 museums in the capital city of Riga, inviting one and all to learn about the history of Riga and of Latvia. Visitors can also learn about the Latvian fine arts, the sciences and many other subjects of interest, all presented through a whole series of interesting displays. These museums are of interest to local residents, to all Latvians and to our country's guests, too.

Climate in Riga is influenced by its proximity to the sea; therefore it is moderately warm and humid. Summers are comparatively cool and cloudy (average temperature in July +16.9 C; average precipitation (rainfall) – 85 mm). Winters are comparatively warm with frequent thaws (average temperature in January – 4,7 C, thaw days are about 10 days a month).
