Bulletin no. 1 • Saturday 5 July 2003

Tournament starts with a Vienna Coup

The first session of the fifth World Junior Pairs is history now, and the results are in.

As is not uncommon, the leaders had a 70% game - but our prediction is that it will be easier to achieve this score in one set than average this over all four sets.

The leaders are Anna Gogoman and Martin Rokyta (which indirectly gives our Hungarian hosts an 'interest' in proceedings). Austria's record in this event is second to none with wins in 1991, 1999 & 2001. Poland, Israel, Netherlands, Italy, USA, England, and Argentina are represented in the top eight pairs.

Especially worthy of note is that Shivam Shah is in eighth place - when was the last time that you saw a player aged eleven achieving a place smaller than his age?

Tomorrow is of course going to be the day when matters are really going to be settled. With two sessions to play on Saturday, no one can count themselves out of contention.

The bulletin office will be open by eleven, waiting to receive all the stories that are fit to print - and maybe some that aren't.

Sport News

Tennis. At Wimbledon Mark Philippoussis will play 4th seed Roger Federer in the Men's final. Unseeded Philippoussis is through to his first final after defeating 13th seeded Sebastien Grosjean 7-6 (7/3), 6-3, 6-3. Grosjean had defeated Philippoussis in their previous two encounters, but on this day he had great trouble with Philippoussis' cannonball serve.

With a superior serve and better all-around game, Roger Federer beat Andy Roddick 7-6 (6), 6-3, 6-3. The matchup between young players touted as future Grand Slam champions turned out to be a mismatch. Federer controlled the net, employed more variety of shots and -- surprisingly -- hit 17 aces to just four for Roddick.

Golf. Tiger Woods tied a course and tournament record with a 9-under 63 Thursday, taking a one-stroke lead at the 100th Western Open.

Basketball. LeBron James has signed yet another multimillion dollar deal, but this one isn't for anything he'll drink or wear on his feet. James signed his three-year, $12.96 million rookie contract Thursday with the Cleveland Cavaliers, who selected the 18-year-old Akron high school phenomenon with the No. 1 overall pick in the NBA draft.

Cycling. The 100th Tour de France starts tomorrow with the 6.5 km prologue, where Lance Armstrong will try for his 5th (consecutive) victory thus joining Tour legends Jacques Anquetil, Eddy Merckx, Bernard Hinault and Miguel Indurain. Indurain is the only rider to have won five times consecutively. Bookmakers have Armstrong as the overwhelming favorite with Joseba Beloki, Gilberto Simoni, Jan Ullrich and Santiago Botero as the main rivals.

Friday's News around the World

Rome. Premier Silvio Berlusconi insisted Friday he had never apologized to Germany, saying he had merely told the German leader he was sorry that his Nazi "joke" had been misunderstood.

Iraq. The CIA is reviewing an audiotape purporting to contain the voice of Saddam Hussein but has not verified that it was the ousted Iraqi leader, a US intelligence official said Friday.

Pakistan. An explosion shattered a Shiite Muslim mosque in Quetta in an attack that killed at least 10 worshippers during Muslim prayers, police and witnesses said. Angry Shiites rioted in the streets of this southwestern city, burning cars and tires.

Single Dummy

by Steen Moller

In the plane today between Copenhagen and Budapest I happened to get a seat besides a young man. Out of his pocket he soon picked the DANISH bridge magazine and I asked the obvious question:

'Are you a Danish junior on your way to Tata?'

'Almost right', he said. 'I am Sjur Arne Boe, from Norway, bound for Tata. Do you want to borrow the NORWEGIAN magazine? I have it in my other pocket'.

I thanked him, and skimmed through it very fast until I saw this:

♠ K Q J 10 5 2	♠ A 7 4
♥ 8 5	♥ A K 6 3
♦ -	♦ 8 2
♣ 9 8 6 4 2	♣ A K J 10

West plays 6♠. North lead a diamond. How to make it? <hint> The black suits are not behaving.

ANSWER

For you to have any problems after ruffing the first trick, you will have to find trumps 4-0. As this is a sure-trick problem you will have to draw all the trumps before playing on clubs or someone will ruff in.

The key to the deal is to throw a diamond from dummy on the fourth trump. Then when you play ace-king, and a third club, one defender will take the trick and force you again with another diamond. You ruff, and discard dummy's blocking club on the second diamond!

EDITOR'S NOTE

This is indeed a great hand. However the provenance of it looks rather complex. I first ran into it in an Australian magazine in 1993, and was able to solve it on sight. Why? Well, I had the benefit of having read the Bridge World in (as I recall 1979) and having met this deal, which still even today remains far and away my favorite bridge problem. Those of you who have read and solved the above hand will not need the solution to it, of course.

♠ A K Q J 2	♠ 7 4 3
♥ 5	♥ A 6 3 2
♦ 10 9 8 3	♦ A Q J
♣ 8 4 2	♣ A 9 7

Play four spades on a heart lead, planning against all the possible trump breaks.

The Opening Ceremony

BACK IN BUSINESS

The opening ceremonies for the fifth World Junior Pairs at Tata were a model of brevity and efficiency. With Stefan Back our master of ceremonies, there were short speeches from the Mayor of Tata, Tamas Hetenyi, and Tibor Nadasi, the President of the Hungarian Bridge Federation. Finally, WBF Youth Committee Chairman Panos Gerontopoulos welcomed all the players and declared the Pairs open. The Chairman said:

“Once again I am delighted to welcome all of you to the fifth World Junior Pairs. Nearly four hundred juniors from twenty nine countries have come here, to enjoy what we expect to be a great tournament for all concerned.

This is not the first time that Hungary has hosted an international junior bridge event. Each time they have done so with great success. As we are about to enjoy the fruits of their current efforts, we must thank all the people who have made this possible.

I am sure that we will all live up to our expectations and play in these championships with the usual spirit of friendship and sportsmanship, for which it is justly famous.

Have a happy and successful game, and enjoy your stay in Hungary”.

The World Junior Pairs and Camp in Poland, July 2001

The venue for the 2001 World Junior Pairs was selected as Stargard, Poland, relatively close to a couple of hundred miles away, to the border from Germany. That gave me an opportunity to spend a day in Berlin and do some sightseeing, which was all to the good of course (but I did lose my passport in the process, thereby setting in motion a harrowing chain of events that I will not bore even the most sensitive of readers with).

It also resulted in a logistical nightmare for the Polish Bridge federation; the fact that the authorities had to ferry large numbers of people from Berlin to Stargard over the course of a 48-hour period resulted of necessity in a significant delay in the opening ceremony. Happily, that was really pretty much the last thing to go wrong with the Pairs event, and the camp that followed at Insko, a picturesque resort town 50 km away. But a special debt of thanks must go to Radek Kielbaszinski and to the team of helpers and translators who managed to cope with the needs of 250 fractious juniors without losing their patience or their sunny demeanours.

When the bridge started, two of the ante--post favourites were definitely Gloyer--Schifko, the former defending his title, and Driver--Sjoert Brink who had shown themselves to be one of the top Dutch pairs over the last five years.

When he knocked out the king of hearts, a third trump came back to put declarer in hand. When he played the ace of clubs and ruffed a club he was at the crossroads. A spade to the nine would lead to down one and a fair board; a spade to the king would result in down two. There are reasons to get this right I think. The strongest argument is that East's initial pass argues for his not having the top spade, once he has produced eight points outside that suit -- but declarer got it wrong and had to lose a third spade in the ending for -300, and 211/216 for the Netherlanders

The next board that I watched saw one of the top US junior pairs in action against one of the leading Israeli Junior pairs.

Game is hardly a thing of beauty here, requiring as it does, something pretty friendly in the club suit, but Feldman and Campbell reached it against Reshef and Ginossar of Israel. In situations like this, the success or failure of a tight game turns momentum as well as a huge number of matchpoints. Feldman ducked the eight of spades in dummy, but Ginossar thoughtfully put up the ten --- just in case.

Feldman won perforce and crossed to the king of diamonds -- note that either leading the ten out of his hand to tempt a cover or even starting clubs by leading a low one from hand has some merit. But in any event a diamond to the king and a club to the queen passed off peacefully enough. Now when Jason cashed the ace of clubs Ginossar thoughtfully dropped the king -- the card he was known to hold, and that started Feldman optimistically thinking about overtricks. He actually ducked a diamond, and Ginossar won his jack and cleared the spades; now when Feldman played a third club, the defence could cash out for down two and a near top.

At the end of the first session the Austrians Schifko and Gloyer had taken an early lead and had maintained it. The top ten, not surprisingly, was well-stocked with Polish pairs.

This next deal offered the opponents of various Israeli pairs a chance to do something clever -- one as declarer, one on defence.

Kees Tammens, who is well known as both Captain and Coach of the Dutch Junior players -- apart from being a top class player in his own right -- showed me this deal, as a good start for his Dutchmen.

N/S were generally managing to go plus here, but after the weak no--trump and transfer to hearts, Bas Drijver reopened with a take--out double and Sjoert Brink converted this to penalties. Of course the defence do have six top tricks so long as they are careful, but Brink made sure of going plus on the deal by leading a passive diamond rather than broaching a black suit. Drijver took the ten with his king and shifted to a top club, to the queen and king. Sjoert returned a diamond, and declarer played a trump to the bare ace, letting Drijver shift to a low spade to the queen.

Back came a third diamond, on which declarer pitched a spade.

Both the partnerships had done well in the last European Schools Tournament. Playing against Jakob and Krzysztof Kotorowicz on a highly uninformative auction, Noga Tal led a passive diamond and declarer passed the club jack, which Noga ducked. On the next club Dana Tal pitched a suit preference seven of hearts. So Noga took her club winner and played ace and another spade. Dana knew to duck this, and now declarer cashed off the diamonds and all but one of the clubs ending in hand. At this point he had to decide whether to take the heart finesse or not; if it worked he would collect +460 and an excellent result, but if it lost he would have only +400 and a moderate result. Had he known how many matchpoints +430 would have been worth, he might have settled for that. But he took the heart finesse, and let Dana cash her remaining spade winner for nine tricks and only 70/216 for N/S.

Why would 430 have scored well? 3NT by North is a far less attractive affair --- and some pairs managed to make declarer in the South seat uncomfortable too. Witness Pekny and Vozabal of the Czech Republic, who did well on defence against Reshef and Ginossar. On a more informative auction (1♦-1♥-2NT-3NT) Pekny as West elected to lead a low spade from his ace. Ginossar did the best he could by putting up his jack but Vozabal ducked, contributing an encouraging spot, and Pekny got in with his king of clubs to cash out the spades for down one.

Drijver and Brink were keeping up the pressure on the Austrians in second place. Here was one that got away from their opponents.

Best defence is to lead spades till the cows come home and force declarer, but North led a top spade and shifted to a club, letting Drijver win in hand and lead a heart to the nine and queen. Back came a second spade, ruffed in dummy, and South then won his ace of hearts to lead a third spade. But Drijver ruffed and drew trumps and then had the rest. Note though that South might have had a resource; perhaps he should have ducked the nine of hearts -- a lot easier to do in theory than at the table. The effect of that is that since declarer has a spade loser left, he cannot draw trumps. However, if he plays to ruff a spade, then when South gets back on lead in trumps the defence have control to force declarer again in spades.

Going into the final set, the Austrians' only serious threats were the Dutch. In the end Gloyer and Schifko managed to see their opponents off by a top and a half with another fine set -- the margin was a very comfortable one at the end. This was an example of their accurate slam bidding.

A brave bid by Gloyer to raise to slam, but with his spade controls and extra distribution he could not really settle any lower. While there was a danger that they were off two aces, his partner figured to have two first round controls to make the slam try. As the cards lay, with North having the king of diamonds, and in any event a natural heart lead, 12 tricks were a formality.

World Junior Pairs Session I

Guessing who to watch in the first set of the Junior Pairs is rather a lottery. Since the bulletin has two senior reporters (well Henrik claims he is not THAT senior so he will be referred to as the junior-senior editor), we decided that we would pick our own choices in reporting on the early deals. So Barry followed Joe Grue and John Kranyak, while Henrik went after Fabio and Stelio Di Bello.

The plan was to break after 14 deals and start writing up the hands, but after eight deals we had so much material that we had to change plans and begin scribing at that point.

The first deal of the championships saw Joe and John take on Bas and Bob Drijver Deal 1 N/-.

Bob Drijver's 2♣ opening bid was strong, or weak with diamonds. Kranyak decided not to risk bidding only 2♥, and as a result reached 4♥ rather than 3NT. On the lead of the singleton diamond he won in hand and played ace king and a third heart. Bas cashed his fourth heart to avoid being endplayed again, as Bob pitched the diamond four and nine - suggesting spade values. Bas then shifted to the ♠9; when Kranyak covered so did Bob - and that was the end of the defence. If Bob ducks his spade queen, Kranyak might well have worked out that he was favorite to be 4-2-6-1 to be able to find the duck. If so, declarer might lead a club to the nine... but that is a big play for deal one of the event! Making 4♥ was worth 109/186. Down one would have been a disaster of course, since 3NT is favorite to make at least nine tricks.

The Di Bellos were facing Allan Jones and James Becker of Wales. The first deal was a clear sign that the Italians had not come to Tata to pass.

- 1: Weak with at least 4-4 in the majors.
- 2: Preemptive

The Welsh were as passive as the Italians aggressive. West has a nasty problem where both double and 4♣ could be right. 3♠ went down two and the brothers were off to a good start.

Deal two saw virtually an entire top swing on an opening lead. Your opponents bid 2NT-6NT and you are on lead with a 3-5-2-3 six count, your assets being the spade queen-jack and the diamond king. Do you go for a quiet heart lead, or a very active spade lead? Your opponents do not really figure to be off a top spade as well as the six points you possess -- do they? That was what Bob Drijver thought, but it was not his round when it came to the ♠Q; both Tchaikovsky and Pushkin would sympathize!) Bob led a heart and found that his partner's sole asset was the ♠K; on any lead but a spade declarer makes either 12 or 13 tricks depending on the location of the ♦K; on a spade lead declarer has ten top tricks, but if he tries for his contract he makes eight of them...

Round two saw the Americans take on Giorgia Tani and Manuela Aprile of Italy. The Italians bid board three to a quiet 4♥, making eleven tricks when trumps and spades behaved.

Deal 3 S/E-W

In abstract 4♥ might be the best spot - it is very hard to compare 3NT and 4♥, though here on the likely spade lead 3NT would also take eleven tricks (if East can find the diamond lead into declarer's suit, he might hold declarer to ten tricks). Rather surprisingly perhaps, conceding 650 was worth 109/186 for the Americans.

The Di Bellos were facing a young Polish pair Ewa Grabowska and Joanna Krawscyk. The brothers had the right club in the bag for choosing between 3NT and 4♥:

- 1: Artificial Game Forcing Relay
- 2: Minimum, not 4♠
- 3: ♥-fit asking partner to choose between NT and ♥.

After Ace of spades and a small spade, Furio wrapped up eleven tricks for a fine score. Josh Donn and Scott Waldron had a 'standard' auction - 1♥-3NT-Pass. How should you play on a club lead? Scotty won in hand and led a heart to the ace, a diamond to the king, and ran the hearts. Best defence from here holds 3NT to 10 tricks, but when East pitched one too many clubs, Scott had +460.

If deal three was hard to judge, deal four also raised interesting possibilities.

After the 14-17 no-trump, (yes you and I might open our major but we are not juniors) 2♦ showed spades, 4♦ was a fit for spades with diamond values - but alas Manuela Aprile did not follow her own lead-directing order, and led a spade, letting Kranyak wrap up twelve tricks in double-quick time.

4♠ doubled is the interesting spot. If you reach it from the long trumps, best defence must be to lead a heart to the queen for a club shift. Alas for East, South covers the six with the eight, and West must win and can do no better than shift to a heart. Declarer ruffs, and ducks a trump to West, who has to go passive again with a diamond. Declarer wins in hand, ducks a second trump, then must guess to win the next club with the ace to run the diamonds. Since East has to follow three times, declarer can get her last club away on the fourth diamond, and hold the loss to -500 for a great score.

At the Di Bello table the Poles scared Furio off in the bidding:

JK	Stelio	EG	Furio

Aggressive bidding put the contract on the "right" hand as Stelio had a difficult opening lead. He very reasonably chose a spade and declarer wrapped up twelve tricks. This was worth 110/186 for E/W.

Kranyak and Grue took on another all-female partnership in round three, Sofia Ryman and Eva Berglund. Again the American seemed to get the best of it when they bid accurately to 4♥ on the first deal, making 11 tricks, losing just a natural trump trick and an ace, with 16 facing seven and a 6-2 trump fit, for 114/186.

1♠ showed a forcing no-trump, two clubs showed three plus diamonds - so much science in so few calls! That got them to 2♣, the best spot and the right way up, and Eva did well for her side when she led a trump. Grue might have flown with the king (who underleads the trump queen here?) but he ducked, and Sofia took her queen and returned a trump rather than playing a spade - she had a good idea of declarer's precise shape but even so, a spade might have worked better. When Eva cashed the heart ace before playing a club Grue thoughtfully won in dummy pitching a heart, then led a low diamond from dummy. If Ryman takes her ace declarer builds three discards for the spade, so she ducked, and now Grue won his ♦K, passed the ♥Q, and finished up taking the spade finesse unsuccessfully for the second overtrick. Making 110 instead of +90 made the difference of a quarter of a top.

There might be an argument for running from 2NT to 3♣, but on a diamond lead declarer might well finish three down if he plays to make. 2NT was not much fun either, but Grue got a top diamond lead, which he won to lead a club to the ten and jack. Sbarrigia pressed on with diamonds, and Lo Presti overtook with the king to play back the three, clear suit-preference suggesting good hearts, since he would have ducked the second diamond if that was not so. Grue now cleared the clubs, letting Sbarrigia back on lead, and when Lo Presti pitched the spade four (discouraging) should Sbarrigia have been able to work out to play the heart jack, not the six? I think so. Grue did well not to try to make the hand when he ducked the heart, and Lo Presti simply cashed out for down one. -100 was worth 147 out of 186 for Grue - two down would have been 73 matchpoints.

The Di Bello brothers demonstrated a classical Italian speciality, the off-shape takeout double.

Waldron and Donn defended two clubs only. On a diamond lead to the queen and a spade shift would YOU have risen with the ace and returned a spade? I thought not. Declarer played low and Waldron won his king and returned a diamond -and now declarer was booked for two down whatever he did. On this deal the Di Bellos played against a Hungarian pair, Peter Hodosi and Gabriella Nyaradi, and had an undisturbed auction 1♣ - 1♠ - 2♠ and made nine tricks, but that was only an average because of the penalties being suffered the other way.

- 1: Transfer to ♣
- 2: Takeout

Stelio made nine tricks for 137 out of the possible 186.

The fourth round saw the Americans take on one of the pre-tournament favorites, Sbarrigia and Lo Presti. The first deal saw Grue at the helm again - on a deal where the key was to limit undertricks.

Kranyak as West opened 2♥ (hearts and another, weak) and played there on the lead of the top diamond, on which Lo Presti discouraged with the six. When Sbarrigia continued with a second diamond, declarer was back in control on the hand. The spade shift came now, and Kranyak ruffed the second spade, lead a heart to the jack and king, ruffed the next spade, crossed to the ♥A, and advanced the ♣Q, covered all round. He led out the ♥Q to leave Lo Presti with the master trump, and ran the clubs, and when Lo Presti ruffed in he had no spade left to lead, so declarer had eight tricks.

The interesting defence is to play spades at trick two and three. When declarer ruffs, his only chance to make the hand is to play a diamond himself, not to take the trump finesse. If he plays a heart to the jack, South wins his ♥K and plays a third spade. Declarer can ruff and unblock the heart ace then start running the clubs. But at some point South can ruff the fourth club, and lead a diamond to his partner to let him cash the fourth spade, on which South's diamond loser goes away.

At our other featured table the auction was

GN	Stelio	PH	Furio
West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	2♠	All Pass

1: Spades and a minor

Furio led the ♣3 to the queen, followed by a club to king and ace, and a third round of clubs, declarer discarding ♥J. Then diamond to the king and a heart to the now bare ace. The ten of diamonds to the ace and now Stelio knew that Furio had the Ace of spades and that it was vital for the defense to play spades. Best defence now can cash four spades and two diamonds - it looks hard to do any better, and that was what the Italians managed.

For the next couple of rounds, we have a guest reporter, Kees Tammens of the Netherlands, featuring Dutch pairs. Starting of with a nice defense from Claudia van de Salm and Astrid Dekker against Eric Dannelou - Philippe Molina from France on deal nine.

Nobody can bid 4♠ against Claudia when she has three aces, and her defense backed the tough double. She led the ♦A, which got a suit preference nine from Astrid. Claudia then shifted to a heart, got in with the ♠A, took the ♣A and gave her partner the desired ruff and +200 and 153/186. This defense was incidentally copied by the Di Bellos. Unfortunately it was against 3♠ doubled, and simply limited the damage to -730 for 18/186.

On the next two deals Di Bello were facing Jean-Francois Grias and Romaoin Temboret from France. On the deal Stelio had to lead from the North hand ♠985 ♥QJ963 ♦742 ♣85 after the following auction

Both of the editors would have chosen a spade without much thought, but not Stelio. His choice of ♥Q worked like a charm on the actual layout holding declarer to ten tricks and shows how much we know! Again the Di Bellos were quite busy in the bidding on meager values. The full deal:

At the last Junior Pairs in 2002, Bas won silver with Sjoert Brink, so this time around the Drijvers have the motto "With two Drijvers in the driver's seat it must even go better". After the poor start described earlier, things improved. The strange 2♥ made, but 3NT was also an easy make. From the bidding it seems that the brothers have decided to put Bas in sole control of the steering wheel.
