

All the Way Win for Austrian Pair

After taking the lead almost from the start of the first session, Austria's Andreas Gloyer and Martin Schifko stayed on top of the table for the rest of the tournament, winning by a significant margin.

It was a repeat victory for Gloyer, who was defending the title he won two years ago in Nymburk, in the Czech Republic.

The Dutch combination of Bas Drijver and Sjoert Brink finished second while the Italian combination of Francesco Mazzadi and Fabio Lo Presti finished third.

Pairs from the host country Poland, occupied the next four places.

Session Three

Our intrepid reporter was able to watch several of the leading pairs in action at the start of the third session. Could anyone mount an attack on the Austrians?

I do not know whether it is that Junior players prefer evening sessions starting at 23.00 to a more mundane 20.00, but the first few boards I watched saw tricks flying in all directions.

To start with on board three Gloyer's weak no-trump stole the pot – and left him in very awkward position.

While E/W cannot make 3NT if they declare it, they can make it on defence, having the advantage of the lead. East led a top diamond, and Gloyer took this to play a heart to his jack. Now a spade shift is too late for the defence. They need to play clubs at once, when they will take nine top tricks in defence. East failed to find the club shift, in fact remarkably he chose to return a heart, which must simply be wrong. However Gloyer won the heart and went back to diamonds, finishing up down two when the defence finally got round to clubs. Still –100 was comfortably above average for him. –150 would have been very poor, because club partscores the other way scored only +110.

On the next deal the weak no-trump style backfired.

I do not think Gloyer did enough here, as his red suit first round controls were such as to suggest that his partner might not be able to make a return cue bid and the fifth trump was also very valuable. Schifko might have looked a little more carefully at his great trumps – might his hand be worth a jump to 5[to suggest the black-suit controls, facing a splinter slam-try? As the cards lay 6} was no better than the heart finesse, but with half the field bidding it there were a lot of matchpoints rather randomly at stake here.

Where Linde and Balschun were using a strong no-trump they coped with opposition intervention well enough. After 1{-(2)}-Dble-(3)}-3[, Baltschun was able to jump to 5} as Exclusion Blackwood. This asked his partner to show aces excluding clubs. Over the one-ace response he asked for the queen of trumps, and now knew enough to bid slam, being sure that it was unlikely to be worse than a finesse.

On the next deal the field had enormous problems with the North/South cards.

West might have done better to raise clubs at once but in a sense he had done well to persuade his opponents to play for penalties, since 4[is completely laydown. Even though declarer can guess clubs to hold himself to one loser (and why not start by advancing the nine of clubs from hand – some Souths might cover it!) he can never do better than –300, and –500 looks a far more likely result. In fact the Dutch slipped and allowed declarer out for down two, but an average result anyway.

However on the next board the Dutchmen fell victim to a fine piece of judgement.

Kasprzak did very well in the auction at the vulnerability to pull 3[doubled to 3NT.

He ducked the spade lead to Brink, who shifted to a heart, for another spade back. Declarer hopped up with the ace of spades and unblocked clubs, then crossed to the top heart in dummy to find the bad news. When he cashed the fourth club winner and pitched a diamond from hand, north was caught in a strip-squeeze. The best he could do was come down to one diamond and three hearts together with a spade. If he had come down to all red cards he would be endplayed to lead diamonds at trick 12.

Declarer for some reason now led the queen of diamonds to his ace and only cashed nine of his ten tricks, but still had an excellent result.

At another table Balschun declared 4[doubled and the defence led a top club and shifted to a spade, which East might have contemplated winning, to cut down on the ruffs. Instead he ducked and now to escape for –500 and a reasonable result Balschun had to play a heart up immediately, hoping that spades were 4-1 and both red aces were onside. That works as the cards lie, but he followed the reasonable approach of ruffing a club and leading a trump to his hand to play a heart up to the king. West won and returned a heart and he won the king and ruffed a heart to get back to hand to lead diamonds, and that let East pitch a diamond loser. (If declarer plays back a high heart and discards a diamond he will always come to seven tricks.) When he led a diamond up West took his ace and cashed the nine of hearts, letting East pitch his second diamond loser, and that left Balschun with four trumps tricks in hand, a heart, and a club ruff. Down 800 and no joy at all for declarer.

Bianchi wonders how many diamonds?

Medusei and Bianchi of Italy showed me a couple of deals where they had collected a fine matchpoint score, and modestly suggested that maybe fortune had been on their side in both cases. The first deal had come against Gloyer and Schifko.

The combination of the club blockage, despite the fall of the queen, and the 4-1 trump split, makes the play of the hand rather awkward in spades. If the defence cash their diamonds and shift to a heart to the jack and king, declarer can make ten tricks by simply returning a heart, later ruffing one in hand. It takes a trump switch to hold declarer to nine tricks. Bianchi actually led a top diamond and when his partner produced a discouraging four, there were suit preference overtones that persuaded him to shift to a club. As the cards lie this does not cost a trick of course, but Schifko actually misguessed what to do by rising with the jack, covered all round. Now declarer drew two rounds of trumps and finessed the nine of clubs, letting Bianchi win his ten and give his partner a club ruff to set the hand.

Bianchi was also amused by this deal since his partnership had a small accident with the Grand Slam Force after he had opened a decidedly frivolous five-level pre-empt. Not to worry, the fall of the queen of diamonds made life easy and not only that, this was technically the only making slam on the deal, since hearts goes down on a spade lead.

Mind you most tables led a club against a heart game or slam since South had pre-empted in that suit; have you spotted the right way to play the hand on that lead?

If you know North has a singleton club you should ruff the opening lead in dummy, and draw trumps, then unblock the diamonds. Now go to the ace of spades and test the diamonds, pitching your spade loser. If the queen does not fall, ruff a spade to hand and endplay South with a low club. Assuming South has eight clubs he should be endplayed now to lead clubs and allow you to take the finesse for 12 tricks.

Goran Ivanisevic defeated Tim Henman 6-3 in the fifth set to reach the final of the Men's singles at Wimbledon. Play in the Ladies Singles final between Venus Williams and Justine Henin was suspended for a while because of rain but the American retained her title, winning 6-1, 3-6, 6-0.

The Australian cricket team easily completed their anticipated victory over England in the first Ashes test. They bowled England out for just 164 to win by an innings and 118 runs.

Doubtless in honour of Herman de Wael tomorrow's stage of the Tour de France visits Antwerp, Belgium. Today's stage saw a two man break away, but the leading duo were forced to wait at a train crossing. So the peloton was halted for 3 minutes to make amends for the delay.

Of course the leaders were eventually overhauled and victory in the stage went to Erik Zabel, who last won a stage in Troyes (in 2000), who has taken his tally of Tour stage wins to 9 with his win today.

Bali The Lippo Bank World Transnational Open Teams

The creation of the Transnational World Championships is one of the most innovative ideas of recent years.

The Transnational Teams Championship in Bali gives all players the perfect opportunity to enjoy all the atmosphere and excitement of a great World Championship while at the same time playing in an excellent Bridge Tournament. Being a Transnational event means that you may play with a partner or team mates of other Nationalities.

In Bermuda, both teams that reached the final were Transnational and they contested many fascinating deals.

With an eye to the vulnerability, (sometimes called 'Vulnerability Syndrome') South made a preemptive raise. When East doubled again West was not tempted to try for game. With an awkward lead East instructively selected the ace of clubs, the suit in which someone was most likely to hold a singleton and consequently establishing the king would be of less significance. Seeing dummy it was easy enough to switch to the ace and then the queen of spades. Declarer could discard a diamond on the king of spades, but still had to lose three tricks in the red suits for -300 and a loss of 9 IMPs.

It was another major difference in evaluation that gave the eventual winners another big swing:

The Transnational World Champions

Of course many of the participants from the Bermuda Bowl and Venice Cup will participate after the Round Robin stage, so it gives everyone a unique opportunity to play against some of the top players in the world, something that rarely happens in any sport.

In order to enter the event, you will need to contact your National Bridge Organisation so that they can officially put your name forward to the World Bridge Federation for entry. A list of people seeking partners or team mates will be available on www.ecatsbridge.com - follow the links through the Championships section - and although it cannot be guaranteed that you will find anyone suitable, at least you can be put you in touch with other people also looking for partners/team mates.

Please email wbf@ecats.co.uk if you want to be included on this list.

Bali is an enchanting island, with wonderful scenery and is of course, famous for its dance, carving and music. It is known as the "Island of the Gods". The Balinese believe that the Gods always spread their wings of affection to assure peacefulness to anyone who stays or visit there.

The Indonesia Archipelago covers approximately the same area as mainland Europe, and has over 13,000 islands of which some 6,000 are inhabited. That's why Bali remains safe and unscathed during the political changes in Indonesia.

The Lippo Bank World Transnational Open Teams will take place during the second week of the Championships, starting on Sunday 28 October 2001.

The schedule of play will be as follows:

Sunday 28 October:

3 matches, starting in the afternoon

Monday 29 October:

4 matches

Tuesday 30 October:

4 matches

Wednesday 31 October:

4 matches

Thursday 01 November:

Semi Final and first session of the Final

On Thursday 01 November, there will also be an IMP Pairs for participants who wish to continue to play bridge.

Friday 02 November:

Final and Victory Banquet

It is intended that, in the Semi Final and Final, participants in the World Transnational Teams will play the same boards as those played in the Bermuda Bowl.

South further explained why he did not bid 5} , saying that under Polish habits, every cue-bid also shows "something extra", and he had nothing further to add. When asked what he had been thinking about, South replied he had been thinking of using Blackwood himself.

The Committee:

Considered that South already had enough information to bid the slam himself. SESSION FOUR

The three leading pairs were conveniently located close to one another in the main playing area so that the Bulletin and its team of spies could keep a close watch as to what was going on.

The first ten boards did not give much of an indication that either the Belgians or the Dutch would catch the leaders. On the very first deal Gloyer reached a hopeless game (off four top losers) and found a defender willing not to cash the top tricks – and even better, to clear up a guess to allow declarer to discard one of those losers. Meanwhile as I watched it seemed that more bad things than good were happening to the contending pairs in the early stages.

The Chairman's Farewell Address

Mr Stanislaw Kopec, Member of Parliament, Charman of the Honorary Committee Mr Krzysztof Ciach, President Stargard County Mr Jan Dobrowski, Deputy Mayor of Stargard Szczecinski Mr President of the European Bridge League, Mr President of the Polish Bridge Union, Ladies and Gentlemen, Dear Friends

Thank you all for attending the closing ceremony of the 4th World Junior Bridge Pairs Championship. In particular, we are grateful to many very important people whose presence here carries a specific message of solidarity and support. We are all sharing the goal of promoting Junior bridge, but in this race very few are so determined as the President of the European Bridge League Gianarrigo Rona whom we thank very much for being with us tonight. We have come to the end of a most exciting event, in the middle of a most exciting era for Junior bridge, and I would like to share some thoughts with you tonight.

In every agreement we make for the organization of a championship there is a clause in which the host agrees to '... welcome the WBF and its member countries'. Never has this been observed so much as in this town! When I came here for the first time, I experienced an unprecedented situation. Here, it was not just one person or a small group of people who wished to organize the championship – but the entire local community. From the Mayor of Stargard Szczecinski and the local Member of Parliament, to the most distinguished members of the local society but also the simple inhabitants – all, but all indeed, were most enthusiastic about the idea of hosting a World Junior Championship. Never before had I experienced such determination, never before had I seen such willingness in the eyes of so many people, however important. As you can understand, it was not difficult to make a positive recommendation to the Executive Council, and I am very glad that this was accepted.

I am sure that by now you have all experienced the same feelings. The same warmth and care. The same consideration that the local people have promised and so promptly delivered to all of us. So, I am sure that I speak for all of you, in saying to people a big 'thank you' deeply from inside our hearts. I have to include everybody in this expression, because if I started naming individuals I would need many hours, so long is the list.

I would like for a moment to turn to you, inhabitants of Stargard Szczecinski. As your Mayor said at the opening ceremony, at the beginning we had to look at the map to see where your town lies. However, it is not the number but the kindness of the people that determines the size of a place. I can assure you people that, from this point of view, Stargard Szczecinski is big, very big – it is, in fact, one of the biggest places in the world!

The World Bridge Federation deals with National Federations, so it is normal that we had to work closely with the Polish Bridge Union. This was a particularly easy task for me on this occasion, as the President of the Polish Bridge Union happens to be a colleague on the Executive Committee of the European Bridge League, a very able person and close personal friend. Thank you very much Radek Kielbasinski – and in your name, let me thank all the members of the board of the Polish Bridge Union for a great and most fruitful cooperation.

No matter how determined the entire local community was, the organization of the tournament fell inevitably on the shoulders of a number of individuals who deserve, I believe, a special mention. In this respect, I would like to thank, most sincerely, the Chairman of the Organizing Committee Krzysztof Orzechowski, and his collaborators Aleksander Zakowicz, Jan Choinkowski, Beata Barnowska and Ewa Dudzinska. Last, but not least, I wonder where the tournament would have been without a most able on-site organizer. So thank you very much, Marek Zakowicz.

Once the tournament got under way, the organizers were joined by a capable team of international experts who came here to ensure that the Junior Championship would be run in no lesser fashion than any other world event. And so it happened! This is thanks to:

- the Tournament Directors' team, headed by Antonio Riccardi and Marc van Beijserveldt, and including Kazimierz Chlobowski, Slawomir Latala, Eitan Levy and Andrzej Wachowski – and also Zdzislaw Kzeminski who did a fair amount of board duplication for us.
- The Appeals Committee, orchestrated by Herman De Wael.
- The Scoring team of Jan Boets with Bart Hoekstra.
- The Daily Bulletin with Barry Rigal and Mark Horton.
- The Youth Committee Assistants Zdenek Frabsa, Geert Magerman, Cees and Dita Reimer, and Klaus Reps.
- The Informatics Manager Fotis Skoularikis
- The Operations Director Dimitri Ballas.

Of course, there are also the backstage boys, those who run up and down all the time to ensure that the tournament runs smoothly. They are too many to mention by name, but our thanks go to all.

Finally, a great thanks is due to the Youth Committee members present here: our Vice Chairman Stefan Back, Charlotte Blaiss and Andrea Pagani.

I left the most important people for the end. These are you, dear Juniors. You are the people who make these events successful. You are the ones whom we have set to serve, because you are the future of our sport. Because, it is a great pleasure being with you and working with you and for you. Because you are the ones who make our efforts worthwhile.

You are such nice people. We know that because you responded in big numbers to our invitation and made this championship the biggest international gathering of young bridge players ever to take place. We know it, because you played this competition in great spirit and exemplary behaviour. We know, that you are great sportsmen whom we can always trust.

Earlier today we were very happy to hear of our President José Damiani making some very important announcements. As President of an international organization, Mr Damiani has a very tough schedule; yet, he found the time to visit us even for a few hours. This serves as the best example of how interested he is in the Junior world. However, the President went even further. He gave us the best news we could possibly have. When bridge is presented to the International Olympic Committee and world sport authorities at the 2002 Winter Olympic Games in Salt Lake City, USA, there will be a place reserved for the Juniors. Just think of it: some of you will be there playing bridge to show the world what our sport is all about. And, of course, we hope that what is now a demonstration, will be a real competition next time, in Torino 2006, it. In the mean time, as the President said, a Junior competition will, from now on, be part of the Olympic Grand Prix, which is contested every year in the Olympic Museum in Lausanne, as part of our growing relationship with the International Olympic Committee. If you add to all these the fact that as from last year, Juniors are playing as a separate series in the World Masters Individual tournament every even numbered year, you will have the full proof of how much we try and how much we care about you.

Tomorrow, many of you will be leaving, but quite a few will be staying on and will be joined by newcomers to take part in the Junior Camp in the lovely resort of Insko, not very far from here. I trust that those who are leaving have a good reason for doing so, as with the rest we are going to have a marvelous time in the Camp. After a tough competition, nothing is better than a few relaxing days dominated by our sport but also including many other activities. I am sure that if we made many acquaintances during the Championship, many friendships will emerge from the Camp. Keep that in mind, dear Juniors, when you make your plans for next time. Now it is time to say good bye. Thank you very much for coming, and thank you for being so nice. It is a great pleasure to work for you, and your reaction gives us strength to go on. Whether we are going or staying, we shall always keep together.

Have a safe journey back home, and take care of yourselves and your friends.

Panos Gerontopoulos
Vice President WBF
Chairman, WBF and EBL Youth Committees

DUA Trophy

If you would like to come for a quick visit to Belgium, why not choose the Third of March 2002, and play in the DUA Trophy. DUA stands for 'Denksport (Mind sport) Universiteit Antwerpen', and this tournament has special prizes for youth players. More details can be found at:
